The CYBORG MAG is a state-of-the-art electronic device that delivers pulsed magnetic fields (ELF) for magnetic therapy applications. This device combines extremely innovative features and advanced options with a modern stylish design.

The unit provides a choice of nine simple forms of magnetic fields, all of which can be modified and arranged in a sequence creating thousands of possible combinations.

A high-resolution display with touch screen for easy operation provides enhanced reading quality and great flexibility of use.

The CYBORG MAG offers the widest range of operating frequencies available on the market (5 to 300 Hz).

The device comes with a choice of four applicators of different size and design, which can be used simultaneously and with different programs to treat up to four patients at a time with 4 different programs.

Extremely high power levels (up to four coils can be operated simultaneously and independently of each other).

A large number of resident program for the treatment of a wide range of pathologies.

An extensive patient database allows the operator to enter the patient's data and history, including information on pain levels and their evolution during the treatment (database can be easily transferred to a PC via a portable USB flash memory stick).

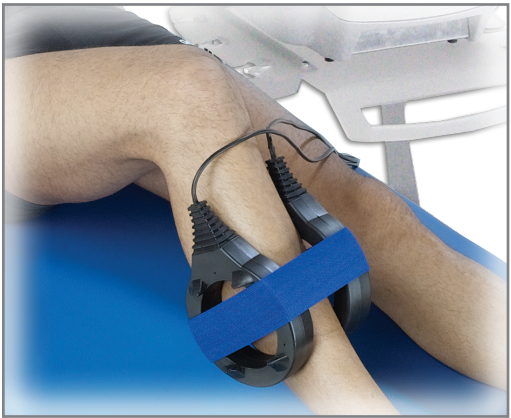

All information on treatment programs and coil positioning are available on line.

M.P.P.® (Multi Parameters Protocols) System: possibility to create unlimited combinations of complex protocols that can be saved and associated with a patient for future retrieve.

Thanks to a variety of applicator supports, the CYBORG MAG does not take up a lot of room and can be used in virtually any location.

All applicators feature a special design system that ensures the magnetic fields do not spread outside the coil for improved operator safety.

All of the above features are packed into a simple and user-friendly device.

Examples of treatment on various areas of the body using four different coils. Most coils are supplied as standard with the device.
